

33 Buckets Intern Positions

33 Buckets is officially bringing in interns to support our mission of empowering communities to improve their access to clean water. 33 Buckets is a budding social enterprise with a currently pending 501(c)(3) non-profit status. To learn more about us, check out our website and the ASU Super Bowl commercial we were featured in.

This is an exciting opportunity to apply your skills to make a real positive impact on the lives of others. You will be fully immersed in our weekly meetings and mission-related activities. You will have the opportunity to carve out a long-term role with the team. You will also have the opportunity to travel with us next summer to execute one or more clean water initiatives.

To apply, read the descriptions on page 2 and follow the link for the internship position that aligns best with your skills, interests, and experiences. Please do not refrain from applying if you do not meet all of the desired qualifications. Also, do not think you will be limited to the specified roles and responsibilities of the internship you apply for. These descriptions are merely a starting point. This is a young organization and you will have the opportunity to define your role over time. More than anything, we are looking for self-starters that are passionate about our cause.

Applications will be reviewed on a first-come first-serve basis, so apply early! After you submit your application, we will ask you to meet us for an interview if we think you might be a good fit. The entire application process will be concluded by the end of September. Additionally, for clarity, these are all unpaid internships. Having said that, we hope you understand that this is common for smaller non-profit and social impact organizations, and certainly will not make these internships any less valuable to your career development.

If you have any questions, please direct them to me at mark@33buckets.org. We appreciate your time and effort!

Sincerely,

Mark Huerta
Director of Programs
