Have a great idea for a community engineering project? The Graduate EPICS Program gives you an opportunity to develop your idea further by coaching you through the human-centered design process and giving you access to professional mentors to bring your ideas to life. Participating students will have the opportunity to develop their own projects, establish relationships with critical stakeholders for that project, and lead the change that they want to make. Learn where to start to get authorization for post-completion OPT.

Learn more:
engineering.asu.edu/international-student-resources